WHO I AM

A DAY IN MY LIFE

I am still figuring things out, but I know I want to keep learning and moving forward.

MARK JOHN LUCERO

I'm a Computer Science student and a working student at McDonald's. My life right now is a mix of classes, work, personal interests, and preparing for the future I want.

Balancing school and work is not always easy. It has taught me to manage my time, stay responsible, and keep going even when I would rather just rest.

RIGHT NOW

02 / LIFE OUTSIDE CLASS

WHEN I'M NOT

READING

Novels, manhwa, and manga are some of the things I enjoy in my free time. They give me a way to relax and get lost in different stories.

GAMING

Online games are another way I take a break from school and work. I enjoy the fun, challenge, and time spent playing.

REST

Sleeping and resting matter too. After balancing school and work, downtime helps me recharge and get ready for another day.

03 / ACHIEVEMENT

CONSISTENT HONOR STUDENT

Being a consistent honor student throughout high school is one of the achievements I'm proud of. It reminds me that steady effort and discipline can make a difference.

MY INTERESTS KEEP ME BALANCED. MY ACHIEVEMENT REMINDS ME TO KEEP MOVING.

THE FUTURE I'M BUILDING

WORKING STUDENT

Working at McDonald's is one part of my current life. It is

MY GOAL IS SIMPLE:

BECOME A SUCCESSFUL PROGRAMMER.

I want to improve my programming skills, gain real experience, create useful software, and build a stable career in technology. I know I still have a lot to learn,

LOOKING AHEAD

> "I may still be learning,
> but every line of code brings me
> one step closer to the future I want."

LEARNING. WORKING. GROWING.

This is where I am now. The next chapters will be shaped by what I learn, what I build, and the effort I choose to keep giving.
